Music at Night is a 1931 collection of essays by Aldous Huxley. The essays in this book cover different subjects, such as morality in arts ('To the Puritan All Things are Impure', a defence of his friend D. H. Lawrence), music ("After silence that which comes nearest to expressing the inexpressible is music", he writes in 'The Rest is Silence'), similarities in the behaviour of men and cats ('Sermons in Cats').

There's this old saying here in Tennessee: When you're talking about country music, you have to deal with stuff that happens on Saturday night and on Sunday morning. The first person I heard say that was Naomi Judd and, well, she would know a thing or two about that. However, I don't think that soundbite of wisdom originated with her.
